

THE LEO BAECK COLLEGE LEHRHAUS PROGRAMME
PROMOTES THE DEVELOPMENT AND GROWTH OF ADULT JEWISH LEARNING

ABOUT LEHRHAUS

The Lehrhaus is the home of adult Jewish learning at Leo Baeck College. Following in the footsteps of the Frankfurt Lehrhaus established in 1920 by Franz Rosenzweig, Leo Baeck College offers a variety of courses taught by members of its faculty and subject specialists.

We welcome everyone interested in furthering their Jewish knowledge and invite you to contact Jarek Lodzinski on 020 8349 5600 or lehrhaus@lbc.ac.uk for more information.

is delighted to host this exciting new venture.

Rabbi Professor Jonathan Magonet, former Principal of Leo Baeck College, will be offering a fascinating

4 week course:

SOME FOOLISH MEN AND A FEISTY WOMAN IN THE BIBLICAL 'EARLY PROPHETS'

The compilers of the Hebrew Bible made the unusual decision to classify the Books of Joshua, Judges, Samuel and Kings under the category of 'prophecy' and not the more obvious label 'history', as they are organised in Christian Bibles. This means that we are forced to read them not simply as recording past events of mere antiquarian interest, but as offering reflections on contemporary life; not in terms of future events foretold, but as recurring patterns of human experience and behaviour from which to learn. So, we will study the rise of a despot (Abimelech in Judges 9); an over-pious and -zealous soldier (Jephthah in Judges 11); a shrewd but unnamed woman (the mother of Samson in Judges 13); and a prophet who gets it wrong (Samuel in 1 Samuel 9, 16).

RABBI PROFESSOR JONATHAN MAGONET

- Former Principal of Leo Baeck College
- British Jewish theologian
- Former Vice-President of the World Union for Progressive Judaism
- Biblical scholar

Jonathan is highly active in Christian-Jewish dialogue, and in dialogue between Jews and Muslims. For twenty years he was the Principal, now retired, of Leo Baeck College, the first liberal Jewish seminary for all of Europe created after World War II.

He lectures regularly on Bible at the College, in Germany and Japan and is the editor of the College's journal European Judaism.

He is member of the team creating new editions of the prayer books of Reform Judaism.
